Judiing has now begun for the 2015 West Coast Leading Light Business Excellence Awards with organisers saying they are pleased with the number of entries received.

This is the first year the awards will take place mid-year with the gala dinner to announce the winners being held at Shanntyown on 8 May. DWC, Business Development Manager Helen Wilson says she is delighted with the calibre of entries awarded.

It is encouraging to see a similar number of entries to previous awards. We have also had a great response from the tourism and hospitality sector which is wonderful given they had to prepare their entries in what is a really busy time for them," she says.

There has been an impressive response to the Department of Conservation’s new Environment Award with nearly half of all businesses entering categories also entering the environment award.

DOC Partnership Ranger Helen Gillespie says the Environment Award recognises businesses or organisations that demonstrate guardianship of the natural environment and some of the initiatives they are now judging are fantastic.

"It is wonderful to see so many organisations are thinking about their environmental footprint and what difference they can make. It is heartening to see so many champions for the environment in our community and this is a great chance to acknowledge that leadership," she says.

The 2015 awards categories are the Greythumb Star Super Nova Award, Duncan Cotterill Enterprise 30+ Award, Newstalk ZB Retail Award, New Zealand Institute of Management Southern Professional Service Award, Crombie Lockwood Trades/Manufacturing/Primary Producer Award, Christchurch Airport Tourism & Hospitality Award, Westland Milk Products Not for Profit Award, ACC Workplace Safety Award and Department of Conservation Environment Award. Silver sponsors include ANZ Bank, Brannigans and Air New Zealand.

A team of eight judges from all over the South Island are now assessing the entries and the finalists will be announced in early April.

Funding to upgrade schools’ technology infrastructure

West Coast secondary and area schools will be able to access the same level of ultrafast broadband as the rest of the country after a $300,000 funding boost from DWC.

The financial support will allow the seven West Coast secondary and area schools to upgrade their ICT infrastructure upgrade costs. The schools must also contribute towards these costs and ensure they have in place an ICT sustainability plan.

An independent review of the first year of the Computers in Schools project found students were more engaged in learning and had increased motivation since the introduction of the new technology.

Chair of the West Coast Secondary and Area School Principals’ Association Kieran Stone says all West Coast schools apart from Karama Area School are now connected to ultrafast broadband services.

"It is an exciting time for schools on the West Coast. This is a huge investment by DWC, they are thinking very laterally and seeing education as a way of developing the West Coast economy," he says.

DWC’s funding will contribute towards each of the West Coast secondary and area schools’ total ICT infrastructure upgrade costs. The schools must also contribute towards these costs and ensure they have in place an ICT sustainability plan.

Construction Alliance opens eyes

Realising the amount of experience and capability in the West Coast construction industry has been a real eye opener for businesses joining a new construction alliance.

Over a dozen companies involved in the construction, engineering and manufacturing industries have recently joined together to form the West Coast Construction Alliance (WCCA).

When the Alliance was first formed the concept was to collectively look for work opportunities in Christchurch but member Carolyn Dodge from Jeff Evans Ltd says the group has since realised there are also a lot of opportunities on the West Coast.

"Many companies on the Coast outsource because they don’t understand businesses here at home have the capability. One of the benefits about being part of the Alliance is that we have done site tours of all of the member companies to understand what they can offer. It’s all about utilising the resources we have on the Coast better," she says.

Carolyn says one Alliance member with customers throughout New Zealand was not being used by West Coast businesses as none knew its capabilities. Another had contracts in Christchurch and is now using Alliance members to help it fulfil the contracts.

“Ultimately we may pitch for business together or collectively look for opportunities but it is also about resource sharing in areas like training to save money. We are keen to talk to anyone wanting to join so come along to our next meeting, there is no obligation but people can come along and see what we are up to," says Carolyn.

DWC provides secretariat services to the WCCA and helps facilitate meetings. The next WCCA meeting is at the DWC offices in Mackay Street at 3pm on 15 April. If you are interested in attending contact nelia@dwc.org.nz.
